

Helmet Cam - Is it even worth it?

Posted At : April 3, 2008 6:26 PM | Posted By : Erik Voldengen

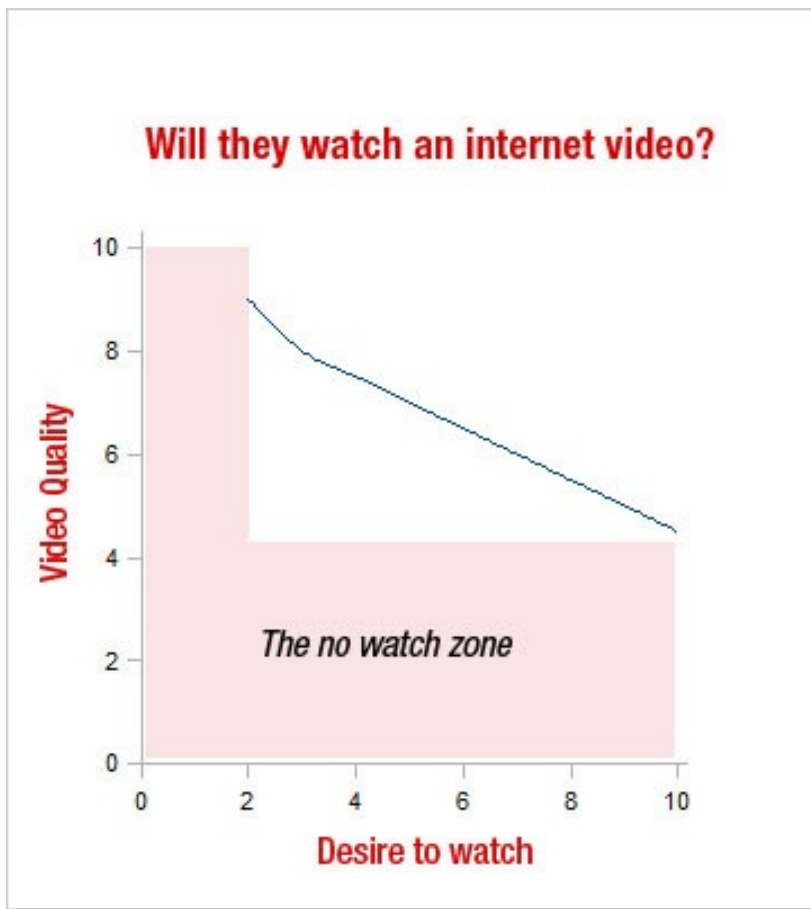

Related Categories: Helmet Cam, Misc

I've decided not to wear it, but you can read if you'd like:

So I've been considering wearing my lame helmet cam on a certain ride this Saturday.

The problem is, it's lame. It takes videos at 15 frames per second. Here's an example. The only saving grace may be that we'll be climbing a lot, and slower speeds look better at 15fps.

I'm asking for input...is it even worth it? When watching video, there is a line where poor quality negates the desire to watch. Here is a chart to spell it out. The curve is off but I only have a few minutes to put this together before I get back to work:

Maybe I'll just pack a normal camera and take some still shots.